VERMILION AND WAINWRIGHT ELKS CLASH AT HOCKEY

On Monday evening the Vermilion Elks hockey team visited the local arena to try conclusions with their Wainwright brethren at the stick and puck game. Unfortunately owing to the softening weather the ice was in no condition for fast hockey.

A good assemblage was to see the boys perform and, as usual, some were disappointed to see the local boys go down to defeat. However the visitors won by a 4-1 score and there was no thing left to do but for the locals to take the loss with a good grace and resolve to reverse the odds at the next meet.

To Frank Mead, the Vermilion goalie, belongs a big share of the credit for the victory, as on the evening's play Wainwright had more shots at the keep than their opponents; but Mead was there and turned them from all angles.

Shortly after the opening of the first period Aykroyd, Boudreau and Lepper worked the rubber up the ice and Lepper scored from Aykroyd's pass. All looked well for Wainwright with first blood in their favor; but this was their only tally in the game.

In the second frame, after the slush had been cleared from the ice the visitors settled down to a cool, heady game, and soon after the start Hester shot a hot one and evened up the score. A moment later Habik (formerly of Wainwright) rushed the length of the ice and drove one past Brunker making it 2-1 and before the close of the period Barr the big defenseman scored still another for Vermilion.

When the third canto opened, the home boys tore into the fray with a will, but the visitors' defence never faltered and there was nothing doing.

Shortly before the end of the melee Reasbeck planted another in the hemlock for the visitors to make good measure for the lords of the north town. This weight, and this made a great difference on the sticky ice.

It would be hard to pick outstanding players, as the ice was not in shape for fast hockey and many a well-intended maneuver was spoiled by losing the puck.

A return game has been arranged to take place in Vermilion in the near future, and the locals hope to reverse the outcome. To save confusion the C.N.R. boys kindly loaned the locals their sweaters for this game.

DEMAND MOTOR HIGHWAYS AS ACTUAL NECESSITY

Canada's Diamond Jubilee year is the fitting occasion for her people to register through the Press their resolve to build motor highways through out the Dominion. The building of an all-weather Trans-Canada highway is as necessary in 1927 as the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway was founded to be in 1867.

The motor car is today the flexible and universal means of personal transportation of millions of people on this continent and its efficiency as an immigration agency and nation builder for Canada cannot come into full play until a main highway system of all-weather surface is constructed.

Such a system of main highways can only be undertaken provided the provinces receives further Federal aid grants from the Dominion Government.

The Federal Government of the United States of America has since 1917 appropriated and paid out around six hundred and fifty million dollars ($650,000,000) among the various States to stimulate and assist in building their main highway system. Another $75,000,000 has been appropriated and is being spent.

The Canadian Government followed suit in 1919 with a grant of $20,000,000 but has not supplemented that initial grant with the same scale and scale as the public opinion declares itself firmly in favor. If Canada had to date made the same effort as the States proportionately to population then $50,000,000 would already have been appropriated and spent for Federal aid purposes instead of only $20,000,000.

The Western Provinces have large mileage and small population. The contemplated highways are national assets and not merely local improvements. Federal aid should therefore be granted to the provinces proportionately to the mileage to be constructed rather than on a population basis. This is the improved policy which has established itself in the United States with splendid results to the nation as a whole.

Mr. Tom Gotobed, of Viking, was in town at the week end.

"HELLO" GIRLS REAPED HARVEST FROM SANTA CLAUS

Among those whom Santa (in his various disguises) reaped with overflowing stockings on Christmas ever were the manager and staff of the government telephone office at Wainwright, whose excellent services during the past year were not forgotten.

Preference seemed to be given to those of the office, the theory being that the phone girls have nothing to do anyway except eat candy and stick a plug in a hole once in a while!

Well, the staff here does better than that. Public opinion, in which the Star fully coincides, is that Wainwright offers a prompt and courteous service to those who call. The theory being that the masterly holding of Monsieur Michon, local manager, who keeps everybody in line (including those who let their phone bills run too long) and the other part is due to the servility of the girls themselves, who give phone customers a snappy service but never a snappy come-back—although sometimes they must be tempted almost beyond human endurance!

(Ed. note—As the Star's phone bill is paid up, this testimonial is not intended to smooth over and oblige on our part!)

"CAMPUS FLIRT" FUN FEST FOR CROWDS AT ELITE

If you want a college education in the course of an hour—the devil of study, yet teaching the latest thing in line get to the theatre on Friday and Saturday next (toute de suite).

The reason? Bebe Daniels' dash of femininity who romps through Paramount comedies to the accompaniment of a thousand laughs. This time, they're all dressed up and full of college atmosphere. "The Campus Flirt" was directed by C. Sorey.

Bebe is cast as a "mis-cast"—a girl who is sent to an American co-educational college because it is her father's alma mater. He feels that his daughter's snobbish arrogant ways are mere by a veneer through which the girl's true character will come smiling after a period of shoulder-rubbing with other students.

Of course Bebe gets off on the wrong foot. How she changes and finally "finds" herself creates and causes an ocean of laughs.

Heading the hand-picked cast we find Charlie Fadden, of cinematic fame. He displays fine acting potentialities and should go far in his new field of action. James Hall and El Brendel, respectively take care of the love and comedy interests.

RURAL CREDITS ACT TO BE DISCUSSED

A bill supplementing the federal rural credits act will be submitted at the approaching session of the legislature. Its effect will be to make the dominion scheme for farm loans operative in Alberta and the Alberta act passed in 1924 but never put into operation will then be repealed.

The committee appointed by the government to look into the rural credit question will meet again shortly to make a final draft of the new act. A preliminary draft has already been prepared but will be changed in several important respects.

The scheme for farm loans as provided by the dominion act is understood to be generally acceptable from the provincial point of view and no further action is required or contemplated beyond the necessary ratification to make it effective in this province. The procedure to be followed will be the same as in other provinces.

A meeting is to be held at the risk this (Wednesday) afternoon at 4.30 p.m. to arrange for the organization of the new Ladies' Curling club. All ladies interested are asked to attend.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Borden and Family wish to thank all kind friends for the expressions of love and sympathy to them in their sad bereavement by the death of Mr. C. F. Borden.

Mrs. C. Bransgrove and Family, of Edmonton, wish to express their extreme thanks for the many kindnesses shown them during the sickness and death of a loving husband and father, and for the beautiful floral tributes.

ENGINEERING IN SHORT COURSE PROGRAM

Part of the agricultural short course to be held at the University of Alberta from January 24 to February 3, will be devoted to a discussion of the problems of agricultural engineering, including consideration of farm building, power farming problems, and various forms and types of farm machinery, paying special attention to plows and binders.

LOCAL ELKS HOLD SUCCESSFUL FANCY CARNIVAL AT RINK

Although the rink was well filled with spectators and "just plain skaters" on Friday evening last, when the local lodge of Elks staged their big fancy dress ice carnival, there was somewhat of a sparsity of attendants in costume. In some cases indeed, prizes which had been handsomely provided were passed up on account of no entries filling the class affected.

The judges (all three strangers to Wainwright) though had somewhat of a task with those who presented themselves in competition for the awards, and the following was the result of their endeavors:—

Lady's Fancy—Mrs. J. Telford; 1st Miss LaPointe, 2nd.

Gen's fancy—Mr. Tony Girard, 1st; Mr. G. Siddall, 2nd.

Girl's fancy—Miss Jean Dunsmore, 1st; Miss P. Osley, 2nd.

Boy's fancy—Eddie Pickard, 1st; Billy Fish, 2nd.

Lady's Comic—Mrs. G. Hudson; 1st Mrs. G. Siddall, 2nd.

Boy's Comic—Douglas Wallace, 1st; W. Clifford, 2nd.

During the whole evening Frank Stott and his Merry Men, discoursed sweet strains, to which the skaters kept rhythm, and after the judging had been completed and the masks removed from those in costume, the vast crowds were soon making the steel ring with icy contact, the rink surface being a real credit to Bill Glass the official "freezer".

The "hot-tub" supper provided was a real thoughtful provision, and the coffee was an enjoyable addition too. And altogether the local brethren of the outfit persuasion are to be congratulated upon the manner in which the rink committee of the order here handled the affair.

Another big night is advertised for the rink on Friday of next week, January 20th, when ice races, novelties, broomball games and other attractions are on the programme for the night.

A dance put on at the Autumn Leaf school on Friday night last was well attended and a good time enjoyed by all. Caron's orchestra furnished the music and the lunch was gorgeous.

Carrell, P.N.G., who acted as deputy grand marshal.

At the close of the proceedings a dainty lunch was served and a couple of presentations were made.

As a follow-up is a list of those who will grace the decors of this popular ladies' lodge during the next six months:—

RECORD MOVING JOB ACCOMPLISHED BY GENERAL MOTORS LTD.

A small army of office workers finished their day's work one night in the building where they and their predecessors had toiled for more than a quarter of a century. The next day the same small army took up their duties where they had left off at the same desks, using the same telephones—but in a new building several blocks away.

And that is the story of one of the most remarkable "moving days" in the annals of business, an overnight Odyssey which marked the transfer of the office force of General Motors of Canada, with more than 27,500 pieces of furniture and equipment, into a huge new administrative building which has been rushed to completion in less than six months to house an ever-expanding staff.

Pressure of business made it imperative that the daily routine be interrupted as little as possible by this colossal task. The end was achieved by creating a special organization which carried out the move with military precision. "Orders of the Day" were issued in advance to every one of the six hundred office workers, and desk layouts for the new building posted so that every person would know where to go. A move supervisor was appointed in every Department of whose duties was, to see that each place of furniture and equipment was tagged with the exact location allotted for it in the new building. The actual move was delayed only until the minute the contractors said "Ready".

All through the night the strong-arm squads toiled and sweated under the weird brightness of the largest "Neon" sign in the Dominion, whose lights, now blue, now red, stretch for 320 feet along the roof of the General Motors' new building, lighting up the streets for hundreds of yards around it. When dawn put the lights to shame the move was well on the way, and when the office-workers entered their new premises for the first time it was not long before telephones were ringing and typewriters clicking in the swirl of business once more.

The new administrative building, which was this occupied in a manner which efficiency experts say was unique, has several novel features. All partitions and private offices are built of movable steel so that the layout can be changed on a moment's notice, or, if necessary, the whole building could be converted into a factory. To add to the comfort of General Motors employees all drinking fountains in the building are Frigidaire-cooled, a boon in hot weather. This modern structure replaces the original office, formerly occupied by the McLaughlin Carriage Company, of which the cornerstone was laid in 1901.

The annual congregational meeting of the Wainwright United church is being held in the church at 8 p.m. this (Wednesday) evening. The reports from all the organizations of the church and election of church officers will take place. Refreshments will be served at the close.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" in a Warner Bros.

"What the devil brings you here?"

stomped Buckwell, releasing Dolores from unfastened arms.

She staggered and clutched at the table for support. Then, dreading to meet anyone's eyes hurried her face in her hands.

Buckwell shot his stiff cuffs into place, quickly straightened his large tie and gave the ends of his waxed moustache an upward twist. "You can be very busy with other people's business, can't you?" he thought at Terry sneeringly.

"You low down cur" Terry slammed the door behind him and crossed menacing to the table.

Something familiar in the voice made Dolores turn. "Oh Terry!" she cried thankfully.

"So you had him follow us, eh?" observed Buckwell. "I might have known you weren't as innocent as your pretended."

"That's a lie!" flared Terry bitterly.

I called at the Vasquez home to opo-lize for something that happened last night. When the servant said she was here, with you—I knew something was wrong and took the same short cut back to follow you. It is a good thing

I did! Terry approached Buckwell with clenched fists. "You damned skunk and with his open hand hit Buckwell a resounding slap on the cheek.

Surprised at the attack Buckwell drew back and a volley of vile curses pounded from his lips.

Terry's lightning Irish blood was aroused and he backed Buckwell into a corner with a volley of rights and lefts.

Buckwell was slower but many pounds, acuter and every blow that he gave carried his full weight behind it.

Dolores stepped aside and watched breathlessly in an agony of fear lest

Terry be hurt.

It was no time for idle sparring. Terry's anger was too much aroused. He wanted to avenge Buckwell's insult to Dolores without further delay. With a quick upward cut he crossed a right to Buckwell's chin, then sent the Car-roller's head careening back over the divan where he sprawled half stunned.

Terry stood over him menacingly.

"You will regret this insult," flared the disheveled Buckwell, brushing the dust from his dark coat.

"You only got what you deserve, and you won't dare squeal retorted Terry then turning to Dolores. "Do you know who he is?"

"Only his name and that he promised

—he offered to help Grandfather and we keep the rancho."

"Well he is Chris Buckwell—the very rotter who is trying to steal your home. It was he for whom my uncle tried to negotiate—that's how I know all about him. He is the biggest grafter in San Francisco.

"Oh! Dolores looked at Buckwell in amazement, then flared. "You the benefactor—the man who is trying to ruin us. You deceived my Grandfather and you tricked me into coming here!"

her voice rang out clear and strong.

Buckwell felt her scorn but shrug-ged it aside with a smirk. "You made but one mistake, my dear. I never try to always accomplish and I never waste time! Bowing gracefully he turned his back on Dolores then facing Terry continued in a cold, cruel tone. "For this insult it that he my welcome pleasure to deal with you later. Turning on his heel in military fashion he calmly left the room with the air of a conqueror rather than that of the vanquished.

The two young people watched

Buckwell until the door closed behind him.

Terry brushed his hair back into place with his hand and turning to Dolores said pleadingly. "I'm terribly sorry about last night but after your fiance arrived, I—I—" He paused awkwardly.

"My what?" questioned Dolores looking at him intently.

"Your fiance—the young Spaniard—the young Grandfather told me all about it finished Terry bravely.

"And you believed him!" Dolores threw back her head and laughed. "He wants us to be engaged but we never have and I never will be—I don't like him enough for that." Dolores smiled and the very room vibrated with happiness.

Terry felt that he had been reborn into another world.

"Ah! Sure and I'm happy now!" he exclaimed. "Do you think you could like me well enough to be engaged—to me—right now?" he asked in a low excited voice. His eyes sought Dolores.

"Yes!" she laughed so softly that if he had been another inch farther away he could not have heard she laughed because being engaged was something entirely strange and she had no idea what else was expected of her.

It was a new experience for Terry too, but he had no hesitation or doubts about what came next.

"Dolores—Dolores—I love you!" and

"Some men have come who have no from one cheek to the other sized up right to be here" explained Terry. "I'll Don Luis from head to foot and finally go out and see about it. He put a com spoke through a broad grin. "Aw beat forting hand on Dolores arm for a mo it's young garlic bound."

The Psychology of Color on a World Cruise

Colors that run rampant in the four corners of the world provide the contrasts that make a lasting impression on the memory of the world traveler. Districts wholly different in their colorful ensemble are but a few miles apart and the keynote of their striking contrasts is color. Today we hear much about color psychology, its effect on the senses of people and its animals; and how it affects temperament and even health.

Colors of the scattered ports of the world that burst from quaint bazaars and the costumes of the inhabitants on the streets, with those of nature. The landscapes and seas differ; colors in architecture, and the colors of princes, peasant and paupers, gladden the eye and make the blood run riot in union.

From New York on December 2 the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Australia, will commence another cruise to the contrasting ports of the world. This vessel will make an entire circuit of the globe anchoring in 66 ports and visiting 21 different countries, covering during the four-months cruise approximately 28,400 miles.

Funchal the Capital of Madeira, and the first port of call is radiant with gaily colored houses and gardens. Costumes here are likewise brilliant. Naples with the wonderful blue of its sea and sky, with Mount Vesuvius at one side and the Islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida in the distance, affords a vision of loveliness.

Japan in cherry blossom time is a fairland of color and sunshine, and Fujiyama towers above the masses of bloom, its white summit contrasted against the blue sky. New Year's eve in Cairo is most festive and here by the cruise managers on board.

Colors run riot. The bazaars, the places and bright hued mosques with their numerous minarets and domes are color schemes of rare beauty. Each of the countries offers an ever-changing vista of color and strike vividly into the memory, causing the traveler to become interested, consciously or not, in color psychology.

One of the features of the world cruise of the Empress of Australia is the way detail worries have been taken out of the hands of the members of the cruise party. From start to finish the ship is their home. Worries in connection with foreign money, customs regulations and language are a thing unknown to the passengers, as these details have been worked out months ahead and handled entirely by the cruise managers on board.

BUSINESS EXPANSION

The Star has always been justly proud of the opportunity to provide to the world at large the different growths and expansions which have taken place in the many business places of Wainwright, and for this reason we feel it incumbent upon us to inscribe another such event upon the scroll of Wainwright's history.

In this instance it is The Star office itself which is feeling the hurrying bonds, and to overcome the difficulty plans have now been completed where by we will within the next few weeks install in the Star building a new and up-to-date Campbell-Meikle printing press in the place of the machine which is at present in use.

The new press will be of far larger capacity than the old one, and will be capable of printing four pages of The Star in one impression. It will weigh upwards of seven tons, and will be practically automatic. It will take no special skill for installation after arrival which work will be done by special erections from the factory.

In addition to the new big press, we are arranging, also, to procure a new type dress for the reading matter whereby The Star will appear as possibly the best printed weekly paper in the province. The very latest style of type matrices and every business for our linotype to make this change.

This is our end of the newspaper and publishing game—which we make bold to say we have upheld to the highest standard for many years—and it is now incumbent upon the merchants and advertisers to get to it that each and every business mentioned in, at least, some space (large or small) in every issue of The Star, and that their name and their business is kept vividly before the buying public of this territory. Mr.

Business Man: "Let's get together on this; the advantage is bound to be mutual."

RESOLUTIONS

(There is no good reason why New Year's affords a better time to make a good resolution than any other season of the year. Any date on which one may reach the conclusion that one would be better for desisting from some practice to which one is addicted, or to adopt a course which one has not hitherto followed is a good time to begin. However, New Year's is a favorite date because it is the start of another year. This slate is wiped clean then and a new account is opened. It is easier to make a resolution than it is to keep it. Resolutions have to do with improvement. It doesn't require resolution to do worse than one did in the old year. A worse course offers itself in the new year. To make a resolution is the one which requires fortitude and persistence.

Despite resolutions we may make most of us do not change greatly from year to year. It's the trend though that makes the chief difference. With some the direction is on an ascending plan while others there is a down grade and the latter is the easiest course to pursue, though the difference between the two may not be especially perceptible. Most of those who improve a little do so unconsciously, while many of those who grow worse do not do so at a rapid rate. The result depends on the kind of a groove in which one is running; for we do not move on a plane surface without any ruts to hold him in his course is an exception.

We do not desecrate New Year's resolutions. Good ones made and broken may be much better than none made at all. Yet one who never thinks of change of habits and motives except at the inception of another year will not get very far in personal uplift. These dates come too infrequently and there are not enough of them in a life time.

THE "NEW" YEAR

The New Year will be a repetition of old experiences a re-enforcement of old laws a re-affirmation of another human saying which is that human nature changes little and human relationships are much the same today as they were when the first philosophical writer first set his chisel to work on the stone tablets, wherein were written the observations and records of that far-off time when the human race first began to discover the antiquity of the planet and the unswerving laws that govern it.

We enter upon the New Year, to be sure but in it we shall be responsive to the same forces as heretofore. We will be rewarded as we put our selves into harmony with divine statutes, and punished as we disregard them. There are but two lamps by which our feet may be guided, these of experience and conscience. If as profit by one and hearken to the other, we shall avoid many of the pitfalls that lie ahead; the same old pitfalls, in the same old places and lullabies in the same old manner. If we play the game in accord with the rules laid down by that "still small warning voice within" we shall escape the old retributions for the same old errors that men and women have been making for thousands of years.—Ex.

SPECIAL TRAIN TAKES TROUPE TO RACE TRACKS
FROM CULVER CITY

When Jackie Coogan and his company, numbering some two hundred persons left Hollywood a few months ago bound for Taurian race tracks, where the exciting scene for "Johnnie Get Your Hair Cut" was to be filmed a special train in the Southern Pacific Railroad was chartered to transport the troupe. This special movie train carried six palace horse cars and in these cars were twenty of the finest thoroughbreds. Baggage cars for personal baggage and box cars for working equipment; two dining cars led the hungry mob.

Included in Jackie's company were twenty of the most famous jockeys Bobby Doyle one of the youngest and most successful jockeys in America, was signed to play a part and to train Jackie in the art of riding a hangout. Tranfuran is one of the West's show places and the track was leased by Jackie's company for five weeks "Johnnie Get Your Hair Cut" which comes

GIVE HER JUST

ENOUGH TO DRINK

"Your plates are all buckled and wrapped" said the battery man.

"Overheating. You want all summer without ever testing that battery?" A battery must not get hot if it is hot. If it reaches a temperature of 120 degrees F. it probably will be ruined. On a hot summer's day test the temperature of the battery with a thermometer. If the fluid is at or around 100 degrees Fahrenheit your lights are burning. This will absorb most of the current supplied by the generator. To get to do so is to overcharge the battery, which wraps and binds your plates. A wrapped plate will drop its contents the wooden separators won't let you may get an internal short circuit and the battery shortly comes to a function usually when you need it most.

You have not filled the battery often enough at one time of its life, and another time you have filled it too full.

But how do you know? Look for yourself. If there was a mark on the plates, that's where your battery fluid level was when you opened it—half an inch of plate sticking out over the fluid. That does two things to the battery. In the first place it makes the solution too strong in the second it makes the water in the battery do the work which all a battery should do.

At another time or times you over filled the battery; you poured in distilled water until it filled up the filling holes to the very brim. Then you put on the caps and went your way rejoicing. Meanwhile when your battery commenced to function it got warm, bubbles of gas came into the fluid and it expanded, pushed its way out through the breather holes, ran down on the top of the battery, then onto the wooden case, ate part of that up, made a deposit of corrosion on the terminals, weakened the electrolyte and generally played heck with the works. Give your battery just enough to drink—and no more.

Manufacture from fish scales of "pearl essence," a liquid used in coating artificial pearls, backs of combs, brushes and dressing tables sets, is a new industry on the Pacific coast. A plant for the preparation of the "liquid pearls" has just been established near San Diego, Calif., and the product sells from $60 to $200 per pound depending upon the quality.

Famous Indian Treaty Opened New Empire for Settlement

Fifty years ago, or in the late summer of 1877, only a few days before the first locomotive engine entered Western Canada, the most important treaty between the Canadian Government and the Indians of the plains was signed. It was treaty No. 7, the one that brought peace to the great plains and threw open a new empire for settlement. The historic document was signed on the banks of the Bow River just east of Calgary and near the Canadian Pacific Railway station of Cluny. It is, possibly, a greater tribute to the men than to his white brothers that the terms of the treaty has been lived up to in every detail.

On September 22, 1927, the fiftieth anniversary of the memorable occasion, hundreds of people from all walks of life, representatives of various tribes of Indians and officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police gathered at the historic spot for an impressive memorial service.

While I speak, be kind and patient. I have to speak for my people who are numerous, and who rely on me to follow that course which is the future will tend to their good. The plains are wide. We are children of the plains; it is our home and the buffalo has been our food always. I hope you look upon the Blackfoot, Blood and Sarcee as your children now and that you will be indulgent and charitable to them.

"They all expect me to speak now for them and I trust the Great Spirit will put into their breasts to be a good people—into the minds of the men, women and children and their future generations.

"The advice given me and my people has been very good. If the police had not come into the country, where would we all be now? Had men and whiskey were killing us so fast that few, indeed, of us would have been left today. The police have protected us as the feathers of the bird protect it from the fangs of winter. I wish them all good, and trust that all our hearts will increase in goodness from this time forward. I am grateful. I will sign the treaty."

FIGHTING EPIDEMICS THROUGH EDUCATING THE GENERATION

(This is the fourth of a series of articles dealing in a general way with smallpox. These have been specially prepared for The Wainwright Star by the Canadian Social Hygiene Council)

Vaccination is completely harmless —This is a point around which controversy—when there is controversy —usually rages.

During the war, the matter was abundantly proved by army records. There were over 400,000 men in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. Every one of these men was vaccinated. They were vaccinated under all sorts of conditions and absolutely accurate records of the results were kept.

Not only was there not one death but there was also not a single disability of vaccination. Both Surgeon-General Fotheringham and Col. J. A.
Amoyt who was in charge of sanitation among the Canadian troops, have surveyed the records and issued statements.

Col. Amoyt noted that there had not been during the entire period of the war any epidemic of smallpox among Canadian troops, even though they were in direct contact with smallpox cases. In comparison with this there are the records of the Serbian Army where vaccination was not practiced and where the losses from smallpox were heavy.

These records show the harmless need of vaccination are supported by singular reports from the medical chiefs of the American forces.

One of the greatest examples of the value of vaccination is the report of the work in the Philippine Islands.
Dr. Victor G. Heiser of the Rockefeller Foundation who was one of those at the head of it described it in a letter to Dr. Gordon Bates of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council.

In the past the Philippines had been ravaged by smallpox. The death rate each year had been in the neighborhood of 40,000 and at times had exceeded this. When the Islands were occupied by the American forces vaccination was carried out on a wholesale scale.

Ten million persons were vaccinated Dr. Heiser says without loss of either life or limb. The complete harmlessness of the operation had never before been demonstrated on such a scale.

The results as far as the death rate was concerned were immediate. It dropped from thousands to a few hundreds. Almost all these deaths, moreover, were among the unvaccinated and chiefly in sections of the Islands which were so distant to reach with vaccine. There were also a number of deaths among the unvaccinated foreigners.

Dr. Heiser told of one or two inidents which should be noted. Among the victims of the disease were several opponents of vaccination who had been warned but who insisted on coming to the Philippines.

On one vessel coming from the Antarian continent ships, were three unvaccinated persons, all on different sections of the steamer and in no direct contact with each other, whatever.

En route, one of them contracted the disease. Before the end of the voyage, the other two were also victims.

The Philippine situation not only demonstrates that vaccination is both harmless and effective but it adds additional evidence to the previous records dealing with the highly contagious nature of smallpox and the swift and stealthy way in which it spreads.

It is necessary to remember that no section of the population views the announcement of a new advance in the field of medical science with more scepticism than the members of the medical profession itself. The simple statement that a treatment will company such-and-such results when applied to any disease, means nothing.
It must be backed up by cold and exactly calculated statistics. The results must be checked and re-checked several times and verified by men of undisputed reputation before they will be accepted even by a minority of doctors and physicians.

Vaccination has been undergoing a searching test for more than a century

Each successive report only goes to strengthen previous conclusion. At present the volume of evidence in support of it is utterly complete.

The method used today is developed from the original discovery of Edward Jenner, the English scientist.
The faults in his methods were technical faults and they have long ago been remedied.

No doctor will say that vaccination is infallible. A successful vaccination however will beyond the shadow of a doubt furnish complete protection for five to seven years. There are the records of case after case to show that an individual, who has been vaccinated at any time in his life, is practically safe, decades later, from the more virulent type. If he does contract small-pox in old age, at a time, moreover, when his resistance is weakened, the disease is mild and he soon recovers.
It is against the child, however, that smallpox seems to direct its chief attack and for the child, vaccination offers absolute immunity. It is perhaps, the best system to have children vaccinated in infancy, and then again, a few years later, when they are of school age. Two vaccinations usually protect an individual for the whole of a lifetime and render an attack of smallpox impossible.

It is to be hoped that, in future, there will not be a repetition in Canada of situations in the past when it has required sickness and death—has unnecessarily cost many valuable lives —to drive home the fact that vaccination does what science has proved that it will do.

Handsome Canadian Pacific Exhibits

(1) The Railway Building at the Toronto Exhibition. (2) A portion of the Canadian Pacific Exhibit.

Throwing the spotlight on all its renowned activities, the Canadian Pacific Railway has again achieved success in its exhibit this year at the annual exhibition at Toronto. It is a busy spot for the visitor; for both the artist and the seeker after instruction and education find in this display a wealth of beauty and learning. Running from the ceiling down to a depth of about four feet was a circular panorama of the Dominion stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast. This frieze was designed by James Crockett of Montreal and executed by four other Canadian artists. In lovely coloring it gave an actual picture of the country through which the journey is made. At the base of this panorama the famous all-star miniature Trans-Canada made its run.

Spread out as on a stage was a large model of the St. Lawrence River with the Atlantic Express steamships and smaller vessels entering and leaving the docks. In the foreground were prosperous looking farms, and across the river the city of Quebec with its winding streets and the towering Chateau Frontenac loomed an absorbing picture.

The link that with the West and the East was the Canadian Pacific there was produced a working model showing the Banff Springs Hotel in its fairy-like surroundings. Have you seen the Canadian Rockies and the Banff River Valley in holiday mood. This beautiful castle of comfort in the heart of the mountains promotes the urge to see more of the country we live in. Tiny automobiles tour the winding paths, trail riders start off with their gear horses for snow-capped peaks, and the Stony Indian with his squaw seated outside their log-cabin helped to make the setting realistic.

The Company's latest achievement in hotel construction was displayed in a model of the Hotel Banff-Springs Hotel, Regina. Covered wagons in the foreground tell the story of man's advancement since the days when wagons were the only means of crossing the prairies.

Special prominence was given to the new Canadian Pacific Hotel to be erected at Toronto, "The Royal York," which when completed will be the largest hotel building in the British Empire. Much interest is being displayed by the public in this new structure, which will rise 28 stories above the street level and will contain 2,000 rooms.

the new Union station. Other exhibits showed models of the Algonquin, Place Viger and Vancouver Hotels.

The Lands of Enchantment and Mystery discovered on the World Cruises were grouped in one colorful setting, with the hint of a crusade gliding through the waters. All these scenes were reproduced so as to give an illuminating perspective, and lighted with such changing effects as the dawn of day, the sunny noon, the deepening dusk and darkness.

Indicating the immense growth of the Canadian Pacific Express was a dial on which was constructed a reproduction of the Company's present headquarters compared with a model of the original Express building in Winnipeg dated 1882.

In addition there was a wonderful collection of revolving transparencies in natural colors, also rows of these were placed waist high around the exhibit. Each transparency clearly told its individual story. In the centre of the building was a dial around which were life-sized figures of natives of foreign countries in characteristic cos-

Four New Liners for Canadian Pacific

1. Painting of new "Duchess of Atholl" by Norman Wilkinson.

2. Her Grace The Duchess of Atholl.

3. Vessel just after being launched on the Clyde.

4. Cabin lounge of the "Duchess of Atholl."

During the 1923 St. Lawrence schedule of the Canadian Pacific is the incorporation of four of the four new 20,000
 "Duchess" class liners now under construction for the company on the St. Lawrence route to Montreal and the Continent. The new liners are Canadian Pacific and will be the first of the new liners to be launched.
 The four new liners will be each of 20,000 tons gross register. In addition to this passenger liner the total tonnage for the 12 months is made up by five express steamers of the "Beaver"
 class, and the "Princess Elaine" 2,000-ton coastal steamer for the Pacific Coast service of the Company.

received on the Clyde. The Canadian Pacific she said had entered the Atlantic service only in 1923 and had already spent $100,000,000 in British shipbuilding yards. No person, she added, could visit Canada and not be impressed with the tremendous activities of the Canadian Pacific and what that company has meant in building up the Dominion.
 With the launching of this vessel, ships registering a total of 72,000 tons have been launched for the Canadian Pacific during the months of October and November. This is regarded as a record for a private company. The four new liners will be each of 20,000 tons gross
 register. In addition to this passenger
 liner the total tonnage for the 12 months is made up by five
 express steamers of the "Beaver"
 class, and the "Princess Elaine"
 2,000-ton coastal steamer for the Pacific Coast service of the Company.

Old San Francisco

"Sure—we got orders today to come right on."

All of the men realized that they were dealing with a different character from Don Luis and the young spokesman did not hesitate to answer truthfully. Besides he had caught a glimpse of Dolores standing by Terry's side and was willing to prolong the interview if it meant a longer chance to see her. He did not know girls could be so gorgeous.

"Have you a written permit?" questioned Terry.

"Yes, but it's only temporary." He felt in several pockets before he found it, then continued, "I'm told it will be made permanent this afternoon."

Terry accepted the paper and looked it over, a worried frown appearing as he read.

Dolores looked over his shoulder, and after a moment asked softly, "What does it mean?"

"It is next to the last step necessary to allow the work of destruction to go ahead."

Terry spoke in a low voice but the men could hear. In fact none of them could look away from Dolores. Her beauty was like a miracle and against the background of the old rancho she seemed a part of another world. The men also saw that her chin quivered and her eyes filled with tears when the young man explained the permit.

They marveled that anything so lowly as Dolores could live in the old vine-covered house with its cracked masonry and neglected grounds.

"You are within your rights," said Terry returning the paper. "I have no legal right to stop you—however I suggest that you wait."

The afternoon sunlight was casting fantastic shadows on the group as they stood by the old burial grounds, but just when the surveyor accepted the letter from Terry a different, a taller and more wavering shadow fell between them.

Looking up they saw a white haired old man standing before them with upraised sword. On his wrinkled face there was an expression of grim determination and his eyes gleamed in wild fury.

"There is no right," he shouted quivering with rage, legal or otherwise, that can take this sacred land of my fathers from me. This sword that wrested it from the wilderness will protect it from all invaders." Peering into the faces of the trespassers before him he was inspired by their apparent hesitation to continue. "Be gone! Be gone! and I will brandish the sword and slay you madly toward them."

Awed by the fierce and what appeared to them insane words the men fell back and made signs. In the haste they neglected to pick up the transit and Vasquez bore down upon the instrument with his sword and demolished it before anyone ventured to interfere.

"Be gone—I say!" he continued to shout following the men as they retreated down the hill. No one could desecrate this property or take it from me while I live to defend what is legitimate mine!

Don Vasquez watched from the hill crest until the trespassers had loaded onto the wagon and started away. Not for years had he experienced such a satisfactory sense of accomplishment as shone on his face when he came back to where Dolores, Terry and Don Luis were standing.

"I have driven them away!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "They shall not take my home away from me—it is all I have! Nothing could have been more pitiful than Vasquez's, longing to retain the ancestral holdings."

Don Luis had watched and listened to the entire proceeding with growing surprise. It was unthinkable that the Vasquez ranch was to be seized. He knew the property was unvaluable and had counted upon acquiring all the acres when Dolores became his wife—infact that was the reason he wanted her.

"This new development was most distressing. Trying to appear gallant now that the trouble was over, Don Luis inquired uneasily, "Does this mean that you have lost your lands—lost everything?"

"I am afraid it does," replied Dolores sadly. "We refused to sell and are being forced out by an unprincipled politician who will take our land."

"Caramba!" exclaimed Don Luis too shocked to speak. "The loss of the land is a great misfortune. It means a complete readjustment of his future.
 I am distressed that I cannot serve you in some way, perhaps," he said shaking his head with a fine show of sympathy, "but senorita, I must return to Sacramento at once."

Don Luis turned on his high heels and departed, a short way off he whirled a picturesque "adios" with the reminder that he would return in a few days. But he never did.

Dolores put her arm around Vasquez's shoulders. "Grandfather—Don Luis has gone—I am not proud of the second story his blood has told—he is cowardly! I hate him!"

"There, there, my child, and not knowing what else to do he patted her hand over and over again.

"We have one legal chance," interrupted Terry. "I will hurry to town and return to obtain a restraining order before their premises is made permanent."

"And why do you say we are senor?" Vasquez looked at Terry. "I recall telling you yesterday that we did not need your help."

"Grandfather, dear!" hastily interrupted Dolores, "it is different now—he has done so much for us. Mr. Buckwell was very rude to me and Terry fought him. Besides—"

"That is enough interrupted Vasquez.
 "Senor, give me your hand and with your forgiveness for my anger. And so you defended my little girl. But why should Senor Buckwell be unkind—it was he who is helping us."

"Terry will tell Grandfather please," pleaded Dolores.

Then Terry went on to tell who Chris Buckwell was and what he was doing.

There was more that Terry could have said but Dolores had warned him never to mention her trips into town nor anything detailed about the half hour at the Crystal Palace. She wanted to spare her Grandfather as much anguish as possible.

"I am grateful senor, for all you have done Vasquez inclined his head politely.
 "It was my error not to heed your warning yesterday—my child here believed in you and—"

"Oh, yes, Grandfather," she interrupted,
 "I—I more than believe in him—I —her eyes sought Terry's with their wonderful message of love."

"Yes, Senor Vasquez I have asked—then Terry stopped. He saw that Vasquez was not even conscious that he was there."

Sword in hand the fine old gentleman stalked away mumbling to himself, "I shall guard my land and my property as I did when the Gold Rush came—I shall kill if need be. No one but a Vasquez shall own these lands."

"Poor Granddaddy," Dolores tried to choke down a sob. "We must not disturb him, but I will stay down and watch until you return from town."

"All right sweetheart nodded Terry.
 "I'll try and return before dark with an injunction even though it be a temporary one."

Terry advanced until he was close to Dolores so close that their hands clasped at their sides and their lips met in a quick kiss that was terrifying in its sweetness that Terry hurried away.

Long after he was out of sight Dolores stood alone watching and dreaming her thoughts were swept away from sordid reality by the sheer ecstasy of his caress. She wanted him back and began counting the seconds until his return.

And a few feet away stood another sentinel sword in hand counting the moments until Buckwell or one of his henchmen arrived.

Vasquez was prepared to give up his life in defense of his beloved property.

CHAPTER XII

Dolores Is Left Alone

With night approaching bringing the advent of another day that much nearer their thoughts were concerned with what was in store for them. No place to go, no friends to consult, no money to draw from. It was a cruel outlook for an old nobleman who had grown up with the ancestral acres and enjoyed life in a care free manner that had no one but himself.

Dolores sat on the mossy ground beneath a great tree with knees cradled in her arms, looking at the rancho.
 The brilliant reflection from the setting sun turned all its windows to gold and the soft breeze that was fast dying down stirred the ivy covered walls and made the place seem alive. Her eyes could find no fault with the old structure.

The line servant ambled about the deserted dining room and shook his head as he cleared away the untouched food. The sound of someone walking through the patio drew him quickly to the open doorway.

"May I be of service, Senor?" he asked with deference upon seeing a man crossing to the open yard beyond.

The man was Buckwell. Startled by a voice from the dark interior he whirled about and it took him several seconds to discern the dim shape in the doorway.

"Where is your master?" he snarled upon making sure it was the line servant of the place.

"Outside, senor, came hastily from the cringing peon.

"Where—outside? Now don't lie to me or I'll break your neck."

"By the mission—the chapel senor—the chapel," and two gnarled hands came up protectively before his face.

WOMEN MAKE

GOOD DRIVERS

Among the enthusiastic women who entered an automobile school there were a number who had overestimated their ability but it can be said that there were fewer in proportion who were unqualified than found in a like number of men. The women have a trait which serves them well and that is of asking questions until they are satisfied the point is clear. Men are inclined to be backward or they dislike the idea of admitting their inability to understand. A man will pass up the puzzle and leave it to the future; a woman will master it then or proceed no further.

Every woman who is desirous of mastering the mysteries of her car, should attend a school which is equipped to go into the subject from the elementary to the advanced stage. If driving and caring for a car is her hobby, she will enjoy every minute of the time spent and will be well repaid by the knowledge acquired. The puzzles of ignition, carburetion and the other mysteries will unfold and she will have a foundation of mechanical knowledge which she can continually add to as time passes.

Many women have long since learned that they cannot depend upon the men about the house to make minor repairs to a car and these women have learned not to depend upon some one else.

One by one the points are absorbed by her; after which finer points are taken up, as the adjusting of valve tappet clearance, the cleaning, adjusting and timing of ignition breaker points. By the time her course of instruction is finished the woman is qualified to not only care for her own car but is able to give advice to her friends.

It is being done by women all over the world. One must not expect to acquire a great amount of knowledge in a short time. A system must be followed and the automobile school has that system.

CABINET BUSY AS SESSIONS DRAWS NEAR

OTTAWA—With the holidays over and the opening of parliament three weeks away the cabinet will embark on a period of daily sittings. There will be a meeting today which will probably occupy the entire afternoon, and similar meetings have been scheduled for the remainder of the week.

A great deal of work must be done before the members assemble in Ottawa and Premier King has expressed a desire to have the sessional programme in good shape so that little time will be lost after the opening.

Making roof paint and other by-products from pinyon wood is the interesting process a western man has patented and with which he has had considerable success. His home-made outfit has already yielded a return of $1,500, it is said.
